RAIN FROM TYPHOONS KILLS 18 IN JAPAN

TOKYO (AP)—Heavy rains brought on by two approaching typhoons have killed 18 persons, injured 37 and left four unaccounted for throughout western and southern Japan, incomplete reports said today.

Reports said more than 43,000 homes were flooded by the rains which have struck areas in central Western Honshu Weathermen said that two typhoons churning in the west Pacific Wednesday were still liable to veer from their present course and roll towards the Japanese islands.

The intense technological competition and military rivalry between these two countries, compounded by profound ideological différences, provide a ready-made scene for conflict unless reasonably clear policies are agreed upon prior to the first landing," he said.

The legal problems of space exploration and satellite communication were matters of keen interest at the conference, a gathering of 3,000 lawyers and jurists from 120 countries. The meeting is designed to promote greater world reliance on law to settle disputes.

OJIBWAY, Ont.—John A. Reid and his wife

Elizabeth today voted their town "wet".

In Ontario's strangest municipal plebiscite, the Reids were the only voters in the five-point vote—and to all but one of the five questions they unanimously cleared the way for the sale of liquor in their town, with its total population of six persons.

The vote, probably the town's last in its 51-year history, was called to determine if the new Windsor Raceway, a harness race track, would be able to apply for a liquor licence in time the opening of the track Oct. 14.

Without the Reids' okay, the track authorities would have had to wait at least until Jan. 1, 1966, before applying for a licence—at which date Ojibway will be annexed into the city of Windsor, to which it is adjacent.

The vote by the couple ended a 24-hour period of threats they had received from anonymous telephone callers who warned that their children might be harmed if they did not vote

LONDON—British diplomacy and decorum joined Tuesday avert a bare-breasted dance by African maidens in the heart of London at noon Thursday.

The Sierra Leone dancers, here for the Commonwealth Arts Festival opening Thursday, had insisted on performing naked from the waist up in accord with their tribal traditions. Fearing a near-riot by lunchtime crowds, Britain's ministry works demanded that the girls cover up. The manager of the 60-member troupe refused.

Tuesday's diplomatic settlement calls for the girls to perform traditional dances which do not require bare breasts. But they will be able to perform the undraped dances on television and in festival theatre presentations.

READING, England—Lord Thomson launched his $3,000,000

His Evening Post staff, which had struggled for months to make sure of a perfect launch, stood aghast as the whirling presses suddenly stopped while the Canadian-born publisher showed a group of selected guests through the plant,

For a moment there was chaos as technicians frantically searched for the source of the trouble. When it finally was located in one of the four electrical motors driving the presses, it was too late to complete the first edition.

Instead of the 40,000 copies required, Reading's new evening newspaper produced only about 12,000-not enough to meet all the sales' commitments. A newspaper official said all the advertisements would be repeated in Wednesday's edition with-

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Tor nadoes and severe thunder storms hammered wide areas in the U.S. midsection Tuesday night, with violent weather in Peoria injuring at least 28 persons and causing property damage estimated at $1,000,000.

In Indiana tornadoes were reported at Tippecanoe, Boone Clinton, Howard and Johnson counties. No injuries were re ported and property damag was light.

'We Won't Offer Inducements Because We're the Greatest

LONDON (CP)-Premier W. A. C. Bennett today invited British industrialists to increase their investments in British Columbia but, unlike Saskatchewan, he offered no special financial inducements.

Pride and Prejudice

THE MEDIATION EFFORTS OF the United Nations secretary general, Mr. U Thant, have ended in failure and India and Pakistan will fight on in the tragic net of war from which neither seems able to. escape. Only a totally involved partisan could see any sense in the armed conflict. Neither country has the resources to wage a long war; neither can gain enough through victory to make a heavy cost worthwhile. And as Prime Minister Shastri is reported to have wisely observed, there is world opinion to consider.

The latter factor may have much more weight in the dispute than so far has been apparent. Both India and Pakistan are heavily dependent on foreign assistance in industrializing their countries, increasing agricultural production and generally raising the conditions of the people. This aid has come from East and West, both of which are anxious to see peace restored. And apart from quickly criticized outburts of partisanship from Red China, Indonesia and one or two lesser leftist countries, there has been virtual global unanimity of opinion on the foolishness and tragedy of continuing the Indo-Pakistani fighting.

The reception of Mr. U Thant, although he could not find agreement between the two nations, was an interesting indication of the status of the United Nations in world affairs, despite the many criticisms and difficulties under which it must labor today. When Mr. Pearson and other Commonwealth sources were turned down as possible mediators and even Russia's offer in this capacity was ignored, the top official of the United Nations was able to have immediate access to the leaders of both belligerent countries.

Because of his position he is free of suspicion, he is equally acceptable by both nations, and he carries the established prestige and authority which give an unassailable diplomatic status.

Mr. U Thant was thus able to render a unique service to the world: His efforts, and a probable growing realization on both sides that there must be a better way out of the situation than continued destruction, may yet help to end what history must record as one of the most needless and extravagant of military adventures.

Mr. U Thant's efforts at least brought out into the open the specific demands of both sides and allowed the world to assess their merits. It was obvious from the first that Pakistan's insistence on a plebiscite - a logical one to any foreign observer - would be the major stumbling-block, since the Moslem majority would vote for absorption by Pakistan. That is India's fear, and what the war is all about. But there are other considerations too.

Neither India nor Pakistan can regard the waiting Red China without concern as to what could happen if the sub-continent were laid in ruins. And already, despite the failure of Mr. U Thant's efforts, Pakistan is suggesting that President Johnson might be able to succeed where the United Nations' official failed. Both belligerents will fight on-but each apparently has one eye over his shoulder in hopes of an honorable out.

THE MAD WAR

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Commonwealth: Where Does It Go Now?

AST June, when its prime ministers met at London, we saw the Commonwealth in theory, replete with a new secretariat, glowing with goodwill and inspired by noble oratory. Today we see the Commonwealth in fact, its two largest members at war and both rejecting Canada's attempt to paci-fy them. It is a spectacle for tears, and thought about the after tears, for sober Hutchison Anyone outside India and Pakistan can understand that their war is mere madness — two states unable to eed their people properly, living on foreign aid, using foreign weapons ruin each other, inviting a world war and, if that is avoided, planning already to seek more aid to repair their havoc. But this madness is only the first phase of a larger process. Where does the Commonwealth go from here?

The answer, or part of the answer, was given long ago by John W. Dafoe,

Ottawa from Victoria he was con-fronted on the tarmac at Uplands

Press, to whom few men listened at the time. As he said then, the Commonwealth is so diverse in its history, races and interests that its quarrels must finally tear it apart unless it is fitted into a world organization of some sort.

Dafoe discerned that hope in the League of Nations and, after it collapsed in the United Nations, Today, as he had predicted, the United Nations is trying desperately to succeed where the Comnwealth itself has failed. The warring states will not listen to Canada, a fellow member of the Commonwealth. They may listen to Mr. U Thant because he represents a power greater than the Commonwealth.

Even if they do, however, and the war of Kashmir is settled, the dilemma foreseen by Dafoe will remain. The divi-sions of the Commonwealth states are too deep to be settled entirely within itself. Lacking the United Nations, or some other authority able to enforce peace, the Commonwealth may live on as a ceremonial forum but as an effec tive force in the world it must die. middle of a peculiarly bitter and chaotic election, Canadians must consider the lesson of Kashmir as it applies to them. What power, they must ask themselves, is capable of enforcing peace and pro-tecting Canada until mankind is intelli-gent enough to erect a world government, ong hence? Where do our vital interests lie? Who are our essential friends in this gathering storm?

Listening to such oracles as Mr. T. C. Douglas, you might suppose that our essential friends were almost anyone except the United States. The Indians, the Pakistanis, all the hungry, tragic and downtrodden but naturally virtuous races can be trusted, but never the Americans.

Are Mr. Douglas and the Canadians who think with him too busy to read the papers? Haven't they heard the news from Kashmir? Do they still imagine that aggression is a unique Western white man's vice?

Different View

The socialist colleagues of Mr. Douglas in Britain have not made that mistake. British socialism, the spiritual parent of the CCF and the New Democratic party, is now in office and sees things from the inside as it did not see them in opposition. And with British common sense a Labor government sees that the central focus of Britain's future is in America, not in Asia, Africa or anywhere else.

The same is true of Canada, Australia and New Zealand, all of them as dependent as Britain on the power of the United States. This may not be a pleasant fact to contemplate. It is not the fact eagerly awaited by the prophets of the brave new world when they umed that the death of colonialism would automatically give birth to new enlightened, peace-loving nations morally superior to the decadent West.

past Parliament discussion was seldom limited. The officials advised him that Nevertheless, the fact of power, howwas more realistic to think in terms ever unexpected and unpleasant, is there for every literate person to read in the the new constituencies until early daily headlines. militant and fractious opposition, the weapon of dissolution. That thought must Without the United States there could no safety, perhaps no independence, for the white nations of the Commonbecome an unofficial but still the feeling he had a free hand because the dominant member.

It is madness, we all agree, for India and Pakistan to engage in military war before they can feed themselves. It is also madness for Canadians to engage in a mean little war of pin-pricking sermons, harassment and pious contempt with the neighbor who alone defends them. Yet we shall doubtless hear much more of this native Canadian madness as the election gets rolling and the orators prefer the easy votes of prejudice to the disagreeable facts of life.

Angry Letter

Concerning these things a thoughtful reader has written me a rather angry letter because I suggested in these columns that Canada had made a shabby contribution to foreign aid. Now, I dare say, this reader will argue that the whole experiment of foreign aid has exploded in the Kashmir war There is no use, he will protest, in trying to help peoples who won't help themselves

This notion assumes that Kashmir is the end when it is little more than the beginning of the foreign aid problem. After the fighting stops we shall still be compelled to help the poor, and more generously than we have helped so far But as we help them we shall commit the final madness if we fail to identify our real friends in the crunch

Focus on Farmers

Being an, 85-year-old pensioner. I have lots of time to scan the news and one feature seems so rampant: it has been noticeable ever since our federal representatives raised their salaries so recklessly, all labor has responded by copying the example they set.

The farmer's position is jeopardized by many other working classes, and yet that same gentleman can be portra as the centre figure surrounded by many other types, as I saw in an International Harvester Co. calendar about years ago. It showed in pletures how the parson prays for us, the soldier fights for us, the banker "sometimes" cashes a cheque for us, etc., "BUT" the farmer feeds us all. How very true, eh? Harry Wyer.

Rolling With The Punch

SINGAPORE:

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

WHATEVER ideological victories Winey may score over their Russian and American enemies abroad, the Chinese appear to have met their match in their other principal adversary—the rest of the Chinese. Mao Tse-tung may be the world expert on guerrilla tactics, on sudden concentration against weakness and silent dispersal before strength, but at home he is dealing with nearly 700 million fellow-countrymen who know just as well as he does how to roll with the punch and come back weaving.

The record of 15 years of Mao's rule shows that what Communists describe always as "sweeping victories of the people" can be read two ways. The leaders in Peking set out to turn all China into a gigantic barracks in which millions of blue-clad peasants and workers would rise in regiments at dawn at the sound of trumpets, march to the fields and factories and back, eat in great communal mess-halls and sleep in dor-

Children would be in the hands of the from eradle to college, and in the vast People's Communes in town and country everything down to the cooking-pots would be owned by the collective.

In 1958, the year of the "Great Leap Forward" that was to modernize China almost overnight, cadres in farming co-operatives would tell me with pious enthusiasm how they were going to increase the rice yield three, five, even 10 times by using new "socialist" methods of ploughing, sowing and fertiliza-tion. Factory workers described how they were working overtime and making their machines double and treble their normal output.

Fabulous promises of a production explosion poured into Peking, in response to Communist demands for "more, faster, better". The overworked soil and machines and men then collapsed, and the Great Leap Forward ended with Communist China flat on her

Communes Gone

By last year the People's Communes themselves had virtually disappeared. All that remained were small production teams of men and women working together in the fields, but living with their families in their cottages, raising their own poultry and vegetables, and selling them in a nearby "free" market.

The seemingly bland, patient and compliant Chinese has a genius for hoisting his opponent by his own petard, and in the past few weeks suspicion has deepened that his opaque, unrevealing eye holds a glint of secret triumph.

For months Communist leaders sternwarned the masses that bourgeois and feudal books, plays, paintings and even songs must be shunned, and the "poisoned weeds" of reactionary culture nust be rooted out from among the "fragrant flowers" of improving Social-ist literature. The Chinese people heard and ostensibly obeyed. In fact, expressing their fear that they might not be able to distinguish between weeds and flowers in all cases, many stopped

Baffled cadres were finally compelled produce a tortuous compromise, and editors explained that the "positive and revolutionary" approach was to read even "poisoned weeds", but avoid con-tamination by studying reliable Com-munist critiques of them that would expose their evil. The negative example of bad books would meanwhile increase "immunization" of the reader. This seems to leave the Chinese with a licence to dip into almost anything from Macaulay to Mickey Mouse comics, and deliberately search out the ideologically dirty bits, too.

Changed Attitude

Earlier strictures against occidental - against tight pants, and decadence - against tight pants, and winkle-pickers, shorts, skirts, bright clothes and beehive hairdos, against the desire for leisure and rich restaurant meals and eight full hours of hoggish bourgeois sleep—have now been dropped. Instead, it now seems after all that tight trousers save material, short skirts are healthier, a hairdo is hygienic, and so are new clothes. Moreover, hardworking Socialist masses may need a restaurant outing sometimes, and must enjoy regular, sound sleep to re-cuperate for future labor.

The Communists have made this particular-switch somewhat agonizingly tressing that it is not what people do that counts, but who does it.

Two young workers acquire plush new rigouts: "Why did Chun look flashy in his woollen suit, while Chen looked beautiful in her sweater?" Because Chen a good comrade, says China Youth News, while Chun "is imbued with bourgeois ideas and pursues material en-joyments blindly." If clothes make the man, ideology makes the clothes,

The Communists are still not happy about young folk who now dress sharply, saunter in the park, chatter in teahouses and take one another's pictures with impunity, but they have reconciled it with their continued calls for thrift, frugal living and hard work by cooking up a theory of "rhythmic living which the millions must strive and then relax, strive and relax in a sort of valetudinarian Jekyll-and-Hyde exisence that will save them from nervous breakdowns through overconcentration.

Massive, Impassive

And while editorials still exhort readers to stop pulling packs of cards at the least excuse, to cease reading obscene novels, talking food and fashion, listening to decadent burgeois music and going mad about ball games, this only confirms the impression that the Chinese masses are winning on points.

For some time the Communists have also been gagging workers and indus-trial cadres to devote their spare time to discovering new techniques that would increase production. They were told that nothing was impossible given a "Socialist" approach, and that they should avoid the sin of "bookism"-of superstitiously believing everything written in

But once again the Marxists have been forced to recant and there is talk of "thoroughly testing" new techn before using them, even of the need to "pour cold water" on the enthusiasm for introducing them.

The Testing Ground

T IS A GLOOMY INTERPRETAtion of the recent statement of Red China's defence minister, Marshal Lin Piao, that Peking will do everything possible to discourage a negotiated settlement in Viet Nam. Yet there is no alternative to this conclusion; the official Chinese declaration is clear on the point, as Mr. Lippmann's article on this page last Saturday observed.

At the moment, of course, China's struggle with the United States is being fought by proxy — it is Viet Cong and Vietnamese lives that are state. being used to fight the Americans. Peking's hope is that the Viet Nam situation will settle down into an endless drain of American money and lives—a situation which resulted in defeat and great cost for France in Indo-China.

But the Viet Nam struggle is only one facet of Marshal Lin's publicized writings. The main theme is that the Communist revolution of the future will not be through the rebellion of urbanized workers—the traditional dream of Leninists-but by means of peasant uprisings. It is this sort of struggle that would establish Red China as the Communist. not-too-willing allies.

leader of the world, rather than Russia. And equally obviously, it will require a well defined victory by the Viet Cong forces in Viet Nam to provide the proof of Peking's

This, in Peking's thinking, would show the world that an "imperialist", highly industrialized nation can be defeated by masses of relatively unarmed rural people—a welcome theory for a country which contains about a quarter of the earth's population in a largely underdeveloped

Against such a background the war in Viet Nam takes on much wider implications. If this is a testing ground of democracy versus Communism, of Russia's new policy of non-military competition with the West versus Red China's philosophy of mass force—then it becomes also a ground for the determination of who will dominate Asia. Peking is playing for the big stakes, and the United States, if there is to be an end to the struggle at all, must devise a settlement directly with Hanoi and the Viet Cong against all the pressures Peking will bring on its

We say hopeful because the first element in the program, apparently, is not to start out with lashings of public funds to all and sundry who put in a claim to be poverty-stricken. Instead, Mr. Kent has begun with the philosophical attitude that in a country as rich as Canada there should be no poverty and where it does exist a prime cause must be wasted potential.

Starting right at the beginning, Mr. Kent proposes that there has been a considerable amount of wasted time, money and effort in past attempts to deal with Canadian poverty. He would like to see antipoverty efforts at all levels across toward this will be the federal-pro- exist in this country.

Following this the plan is to have a special secretariat make an inventory of all poverty research in the past and to eliminate duplication of research done by governments, universities and other organizations in the future. In order to eliminate waste of effort in the federal government itself, Mr. Kent's group has already set up a series of co-ordinating committees with government departments concerned such as labor, health and welfare, and citizenship and immigration. The secretariat will also undertake its own research on urban poverty.

If this policy is adhered to it will go a long way toward allaying the fears that the government's antipoverty program will result in a proliferation of agencies to aid the the country co-ordinated in order to impoverished individuals and groups eliminate this waste. Last Saturday evening in the quiet dignity of her parents' home on Victoria Forbes Avenue, she gave a talk in the musical soiree manner. Her subject was Chopin, the man who never composed a concerto, yet whose music sings in the hearts of millions. The young musician set the mood for this intimat style of lecture, with her clear voice, friendly smile and gentle way of imparting knowledge. On the grand piano at her side was a head and shoulders picture of Chopin, the copy of a painting done by his artist friend Delacroix, writings were many and varied.

Rather through a public that, with each succeeding generation evolved its own image of the man and the composer. From these came the picture that was accepted in the 19th century and that passed over into

In recent years this distortion has gradually melded into a truer outline, Carol Wootton believes. "Now we are beginning to see the Chopin story in proper perspective."

Her talk was divided into two parts. The first took us through the years when Chopin lived, loved and composed his music. The second showed how after his death his music. influenced cultural growth, even in our own

Excerpts from the Delacroix journals were quoted by Miss Wootton to show the understanding that existed between these two friends.

She spoke of George Sand and her influence on Chopin as his mistress; told of the respect Franz Liszt had for Chopin and his music. A respect that was not returned for Chopin classed Liszt as a musical charlatan.

She also described Robert Schumann's enthusiasm for Chopin and his music, so aptly recorded in a piano composition.

Second half of the talk took us into the days of the industrial revolution in England, when the middle-classes were beginning to recognize culture as a part of living. "They accepted Chopin because, in some way, they recognized themselves in his music. Carol Wootton said. To illustrate this point she quoted from the poet Keats and from John Galsworthy's "Forsyte Saga."

In the "Sago" it was the interlude "Indian Summer of a Forsyte" that intrigued the young lecturer, where Irene, a talented musician and divorced wife of Soames, visits old Jolyon, patriarch of the family, to please him with her music. Invariably, he asked for Chopin. Galsworthy wrote: "Old Jolyon loved Chopin as much as he disliked strong cigars and Wagner's music

VENICE: A DYING CITY WHERE EAST MEETS WEST

Venice is dying or, you might say, is being assassin-ated. The one definite feature of its future is, appropriately, a hospital costing approxi-mately 16 million dollars, the design of which le Corbusier finished just before he died.

Venice is surrounded by hos-pitals, mental homes, homes or the aged. Le Corbusier's hospital on the northwest edge of the city will be on stilts. over the lagoon and will be perforated by openings and vents resembling canals.

But, somewhat eerily, the patients will be isolated in single cells without windows with a constantly regulated amount of daylight from skylights. The sick must see the sky, was le Corbusier's theory

Utopian Air

The finished thing may or may not be magnificent; but while Venice is declining, into the lagoon and in other ways as well, it has an off-hinge utopian air. It is almost like the Venice film festival which reached a high point in intelectuality but a low point in popularity.

Five gondoliers scooped holes in the sterns of their gondolas, fitted them out with outboard motors and chugged across the lagoon loaded with German tourists taking ad-vantage of the increased efficiency and lower prices.

The gondoliers' cooperative the closest survival to a medi eval trade guild today, disci-plined the offenders. Venetian gondoliers probably set a higher value on themselves than any other "working class" on earth; but the genu "working ine Venetian gondolier is no longer so easy to find,

The exodus is of the young. The number of elementary school children in Venice has dropped from 13,000 to 5,000 in 10 years and schools are semideserted.

What was notable about the interview was not that it produced any surprising news, but what it revealed of the manner, the character and the pressures on Kosygin.

It was the first published exchange of its kind between a Western newspaper and the successor of Nikita Khrush-chev, who gave many interviews in his special free-wheeling style. That operating style, now condemned as "hare-brained," was cited as a principal reason for Khrushchev's overthrow.

By contrast, the transcript of the Kosygin interview indicates a man extremely cau-

The Soviet Union firmly adheres to "scientific Marxism and Leninism," said Kosygin. But that doctrine, he said, "never rejected the necessity to co-operate with capitalist countries, and we are going to develop that co-operation."

"We don't reject the development of economic co-operaion and foreign trade," said Kosygin.

Viet Nam dominated the discussion, along with pointed urgings by Kosygin for Britain to come out from under the "shadow of United States policy" on that subject, and abandon its support for joint nuclear force in the Atlantic alliance

Kosygin used the opportunity of speaking to a large British newspaper audience to press Prime Minister Wilson to abandon the proposed allied nuclear force

If he were to visit Britain, said Kosygin, "a state visit must end in something, some result." He said "what if we have a state visit in England and a week later the joint nuclear force is formed?

Jury Rules Justifiable Homicide

LOS ANGELES (AP) - An inquest jury, launching a coro-ner's investigation of last month's disastrous Negro riots, has ruled justifiable homicide in the shooting of two looting suspects by 'police officers.'

While a governor's commission and state and city bodies today continued separate investigations of the Aug. II-5 holocaust, testimony by detectives at the inquest depicted a frightful five days:

Thirty-four persons dead. More than 860 persons injured. Police arrests, of 3,-345 persons, 91.6 per cent of them adults, 75 per cent with prior criminal records.

An "uncountable" number of emergency calls. Property damage of $45,000,000 from fires, violence and looting. Seven thousand rioting and looting at the riot's peak. Nearly 13,000 national g u a r dsmen' supplementing police and deputies.

Two other deaths—one from a heart attack, the other in a car crash—had been delayed at the fime to be riot-caused. But the coroner, in announcing his list of deaths to be investigated at quests, limited the total to 34.

The inquests - to determine how each victim met death-will continue through Oct. 19. Ruling Tuesday, the nine member jury, including two Negro men and three white-women, first found justifiable the police shooting of Homer Ellis, 45, a Negro. The verdict said he died from a bullet in the heart while acutely intoxicated and commiting a felony, burglary. Ellis, a native of Arkansas, had lived here eight years.

Later the same jury decreed justifiable homicide in the shot-gun slaying by a deputy sheriff of Joe Nelson Bridgett, 25, alias Joe Nelson Horn, another Ne-gro, the night of Aug. 14.

Splinter Party Plans To Run Candidate Here

By ROGER STONEBANKS In every election there are the minor parties.

This time, there is a new one It is called the National Peoples Party and it has issued what it calls The Abbotsford Manifesto.

The 10-point manifesto was issued by George Burnham of Abbotsford, prominent supporter of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

Liberal Links Questioned

CARLETON, Que. (CP)—Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson said Monday that Social Credit MP Guy Marcoux was right to call for a royal commission investigation of the role Moise Darabaner played in "the affair of the six Creditiste members of Parliament."

Dr. Marcoux, member for Quebec-Montmorency, has made a number of appeals to federal authorities for an investigation of the role the Quebec business of man played in the decision of "the six" to support the minor-ity Liberal government after the 1963 federal elections.

Mr. Johnson, speaking on tele-vision in this community during his week-long tour of the Gaspe Peninsula, also called for an investigation of possible links be-tween Darbaner and the provincial Liberal party.

"Darabaner was in the immediate entourage of Premier Le-sage," the Opposition leader

Mr. Johnson had referred previously to Darabaner in a speech last Friday night in Ste. Anne des Monts, saying he wondered why the 43-year-old businessman had been held "incommunicado" for a number of days following his arrest recently. Darabaner now is before the courts on charges of fraud and arson.

Time Loss By Strikes Was Slight

There were 99 work stoppages in July involving 33,691 men and women with a time loss of 325,070 man-days.

NEW YORK (Nea)—Earlier this season, Pedro Ramos, the blue-eyed Cuban pitcher in the majors, had a bet going with with Whitey Ford on who could lose more weight in a one-month

The deadline approached as the Yankees, for whom Pete toils in the bullpen, moved into New York for a stand. Pete stepped on the scales one after-he was ordering. When he first came to this country to pitch baseball, at Morristown, Tenn., in the Mountain States League a dozen years ago, Pete didn't speak a word of English. He went into a restaurant to eat. When he was handed a menu, he pointed a finger like a guy groping for a doorknob in the dark. The waitress brought him pork chops.

"For the next two months," grimaced Ramos, "I eat only pork chops. I hate pork chops."

Pedro Can Read Numbers 'Real Good To this day, Pete still can't read English. "So how does this affect him when he gets his contract?

"The numbers," he shrugged, "I read them real good."
After last season, when he joined the Yankees on Sept. 5 and in less than a month saved seven games to spark the late permant drive, Pete got a raise in salary that doubled any previous raise he had received in baseball.

In a disastrous Yankee campaign, Mickey Mantle points out Ramos as the one New York performer having a good year. Pete, who was a starter his first nine seasons in the majors, with Washington and Cleveland, still isn't sure he prefers life in the bullpen at the age of 30 but admits it does his ego good "to be called into the game in a tight spot."

Papa Didn't Come to See Ted Whiff

Pete always was on the slightly cocky side. In his younger days he claimed he was faster than Mantle. And when he faced Ted Williams and the Boston Red Sox early in his career, he brought his dad up from Cuba to see the game. He struck out the Boston slugger on a full count and then sent the ball to him in the Red Sox clubhouse with the request that he autograph it to Pete "with best wishes."
"But when I see my father after the game," he said he's mad at me. I wonder why. He tol' me he don' come all the way from Cuba to see Williams strike out. He want to see him hit

There's a sequel to the Williams story. Next time Ted faced Ramos, he hit one that went over the Washington Monument when last seen. As Williams rounded the bases he yelled to the

"Hey, go out and find the ball. Bring to to me, and I'll sign that one for you, too."

on the second extra hole of a four-way playoff among players who shot 80. Donaldson, who meets Gordie Jones in the first round of match play, posted his 72 despite missing a one-inch putt.

How? "It wasn't easy," says Arthur. "As a matter of fact, I almost fanned on the thing completely. Besides, it wasn't a one-inch putt . . . It was an inch and a half . . ."

The method, and not the margin, left Reside muttering. Hunt rolled in a 30-foot putt for a half on the first hole and chipped in on the second to salvage another half when Reside seemed certain of getting away to a good start.

LARYNGITIS LAMENT

VANCOUVER (CP)—The coaching staff of the British Columbia Lions got a shock Tuesday after calling a two-hour workout.

Five players turned up with laryngitis.

The Western Football Conference club, pre paring for a Saturday game against Montreal of the Eastern Conference, had to bar two of the players at the door and send them home.

The workout was cut to less than an hour. Suffering from sore throats were Willie Flem-ing, Pat Claridge, Mack Burton, Steve Shafer and Ernie Allen. Coach Dave Skrien also said tackle Gus Kasapis will definitely not play against Montreal because of an injured knee. Several other players still are recovering from

FAMILY FIRST

Red Kelly Will Stick To Hockey

TORONTO (UPI) — Prime Minister Lester Pearson was to receive word today that one of the stars of the Liberal party's parliamentary team has decided to play with a hockey team instead.

Leonard "Red" Kelly will report to a Toronto Maple Leaf training eamp in Peterborough, Ont., Thursday, and give up his seat as member for York West in the House of Commons.

"It's simply a matter of family." Kelly said, announcing he would not run for a third term as the Liberal member for the Ontario seat. He said his life of commuting between the House of Commons in Ottawa and National Hockey League rinks left little time for family life.

PAINS EASIER

It'll be easier sweating out the aches and pains (of training) now that I've got the political load off my back," he remarked.

marked.

There had been some reports last week Liberal party officials were urging him to make a choice, once and for all, between the skirmishes of hockey rink life, and those of life in Parliament. Toronto Maple Leaf coach "Punch" Imlach, however, has been quoted as saying he was happy with the half he was getting out of Kelley's schedule. Kelly has been in the NHL since 1947.

17,000 MAJORITY

The 38-year-old forward won the York West seat in 1962 in an upset victory with a 4,000-vote plurality. In 1963, he boosted the win-margin to 17,000 vote majority.

vote majority.

Kelly is a three-time winner of the Lady Byng Trophy for sportsmanship, and also collected the first Norris Trophy handed out for playing defence. Married to former figure skating star Andra McLaughlin, of New York, he is the father of three shildren.

New Pay Idea Supported By Business

VANCOUVER (CP)—A spokesman for big business believes a labor leader's proposal to place workers on weekly or monthly salaries has merit.

But he believes the step, designed to mitigate the effects of automation, would combine with a shorter work week to actually speed up the introduction of labor-saving machinery.

bor-saving machinery.
R. R. S. Wilson, chairman of the B.C. division of the Canadian Manufacturer Association, commented on the novel proposal Tuesday.

Jack Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America, suggested Monday that the work week is sure to be cut and the union could avoid a drastic raise in hourly rates by changing now. BETTER RELATIONS

"I believe that placing hourlypaid workers on a weekly or monthly salary would result in better employee relations, increased efficiency, better production and lower administrative costs," Mr. Wilson said.

But reduction of the work week would mean more people for the same amount of work, and employers would be forced to reduce increased costs by use of more labor-saving devices.

"We will all have to accept the fact as time goes on fewer and fewer people will be required to put out a given amount of work," he said.
"Shorter hours, increased

"Shorter hours, increased productivity and fewer workers in any industry is bound to come."

Mr. Wilson said labor, management and government should ensure that changes should come in a planned fashion and the resultant slack be taken up by increased production.

Well, I've found something that will keep any snag in its Well, I've found something that will keep any shag in the place. This boon to good grooming is a clear liquid that comes in a tiny pocket-sized tube and is made especially for halting snags and runs.

Once set, it will not wash out but can be removed with rubbing alcohol. This little gem sells for 49 cents and is ideal for mothers and their teen-age daughters alike.

In the same shop I found the solution to another annoying little problem, look-alike keys. The solution is a package of small sticky keymarkers. These stickers come in a package of 36 and are clearly labelled for any key you might possess—ear, door, desk, mail box.

The small labels stick permanently, resist moisture and require no licking. One box will do every key in the house and sells for 39 cents.

Larger all-purpose signs are made by the same comp and are equally handy. They are bright red on a white back-ground with a special weather-resistant covering. They're spe-cially created for those of us with neither the ability nor the time to make attractive signs of our own. For 49 cents, one can purchase any one of a number of posters including a "for sale", "no parking", "vacancy", "for rent" and "no admit-

Mr. Stark believes the tree is one of the few oaks in Edunon ton. The best offer he received, however, was $400.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind paid the expenses for the Vancouver trip.

ambition. But it wasn't his hour. Another Anka, Andy by name, dreamed of making it big and, in a way, he did with a well-known watering hole and eatery known as the Locanda Restaurant, just off Bank Street in Ottawa.

There was no thought in Andy's mind, at that time, that some day he would be in the shadow of another Anka, part of a retinue which surrounds one of the biggest moneymakers in show business today.

Stephen

It was left to this Anka, Paul by name, to make the name internationally famous.

Andy's son at age 24 is a millionaire with a growing reputation as a sophisticated entertainer who has wowed the most demanding adult patrons in some of the world's best clubs. His reputation as a song writer is also growing. More than 300 of his songs have been recorded by various performers since his career began.

CBC-TV's Show of the Week's fall season began Monday with Paul Anka in the spotlight. He was home in Ottawa playing to aspecially invited black tie crowd in the Chateau Laurier ballroom.

. Not too many years ago Anka came home to play to a crowd of teen-agers but they jeered him off the stage, obviously pained at seeing one of their own on the road to success. Perhaps some of them helped make up that Chateau Laurier audience and were

The Paul Anka on Monday's show was not the youngster who appeared as a teen-age idol on an Ed Sullivan Show. There was talk, remember, that most of the new crop of singers were good in a recording studio only, relying on effects to put them across. Anka seemed to be of that group,

The Show of the Week proved differently. He sang with a flair, confidence and strong voice developed over years of personal appearances.

The Paul Anka Show was a fitting video tribute to. him, though there were a few uncomfortable moments as pieces of his life were flashed back. We could have done with less of it, even though it was a personal triumph on his part.

The show was taped in three days in Ottawa in April. It has been dubbed in French, Spanish, German, Italian and Japanese for world distribution, which shows that local boy made better than good.

And to top it all, during his week-long stay in Ottawa, he composed five new songs. One of them, Don't Tell Her the Truth, is intended for another fair to middlin' singer, Tommy Sands by name.

President Johnson, responding to a move by President Ayub Khan of Pakistan, made a new ap-peal today for Pakistan and India to co-operate with the United Nations in the search for an end to their

The statement by press retary Bill D. Moyers left the way open for direct action by johnson to make clear through the United Nations U.S. insist-

Ayub seemed to be saying in a press conference declaration earlier today in Pakistan that a strong stand by Johnson on ending the struggle would force

Moyers' statement strongly affirmed Johnson support for Thant's efforts but did not foreclose the possibility of a more direct U.S. move in the future. Meanwhile, it was understood that the U.S. would seek through the Pakistan embassy in Washington and the U.S. in Washington and the U.S. embassy in Rawalpindi to find out exactly what Ayub meant by his remark.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A Montreal law professor today redicted a possible Soviet-American conflict over a landing site on the moon.

The professor, Ivan A. Vlasic of McGill University, called for an agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union to prevent any disputes over moon exploration.

Vlasic said the relatively small size of the moon, its rugged terrain and 30,000 craters may trigger a dispute over the few available landing sites

The legal problems of space exploration and satellite communication were matters of keen interest at the conference, a gathering of 3,000 lawyers and jurists from 120 countries. The meeting is designed to promote greater world reliance on law to settle disputes.

John A. Johnson, vice-president of the Communications Satellite Corp. (COMSAT), told the conference Tuesday that earth-orbiting satellites may be able to carry intercontinental television broadcasts directly into the homes of viewers within

TWO CENTENARIES AHEAD

Pearkes Plans to Stay to End of '67

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes will remain in office until the end of Canada's Centennial year 1967, he said in an interview at Government House today.

The tall, 77-year-old soldier statesman had previously indicated he would stay in office beyond the normal five-year term, which expires in October, but the length of the extension was indefinite.
"I have told the Prime Minister and Premier Bennett I shall continue until the end of 1967," he said. "I had intended to retire this year but, in the circumstances, I felt it would be ungracious not to-comply with their wishes.

B.C. Traveller

Since taking office on Oct. 13, 1960, Mr. Pearkes has visited almost every corner of the province and just recently returned from a tour of the Cariboo and Chilcotin country with Mrs. Pearkes.

The extent of his travels is shown by a large relief map which hangs on the wall of his study. Every place he-visits is marked with a colored pin and the map is now so thickly covered with pins it is hard to read the names underneath.
